

Singapore Tatler's Guide To The Biggest Wedding Trends In 2017

From two-piece gowns to stunning marbled fondant cakes, here are some of 2017's biggest wedding trends to get you blissfully inspired.

By Lili Tan on Feb 16, 2017

< 6 / 12 >

Flowers: The Green Room; Photography: MovingStills

Bouquet: Relaxed and Romantic

Looking for something other than posy or round-shaped bouquets? The wedding bouquet trend that will be blooming this year are shapes that are loose while retaining a touch of romance and whimsy, according to Juliana Foo, owner of The Green Room. As for the colour scheme, Foo says to expect a combination of soft muted shades of pinks and creams with bursts of burgundy, rusty red, amber, and lots of green. "The garden-picked look will remain popular as many well-travelled and well-read brides find inspiration from European and American sources. Seasonal and unique flowers such as anemone, protea, and peonies remain some of the favourites," she adds.